

Progress in Jerusalem

Jerusalem will soon have its own tramway service, a concession having been granted to a French firm, which will begin laying the lines during the coming summer. An English firm has been asked to submit tenders for lighting the city with electric light, and a German syndicate is to improve the water supply by the construction of large reservoirs at springs located north of the city.

The pavements and sewerage system have received attention from the Government. A few months ago, a water cart was brought from England to supersede the men who sprinkled the streets with water from skins.

The municipality had also provided itself with modern fire fighting appliances. A telephone service has been established, and the police are shortly to be equipped with bicycles. The latest sign of this work of modernization is the arrival of a large American motor road roller—Exporters Review.

What Women Can't do

Sarah Platt Decker of Denver wants to be the senator from Colorado, a political state. She may get it, as she has a habit of getting what she wants. She already has been ready to whatever question is put to her. She is responsible for the "Do-nothing" slogan seen in the street cars of Denver. She was asked at a meeting of the real estate exchange, which she attended, why she did not use the "expectorate" instead of "spit" in the signs.

"We put the word 'spit' there because we know the men wouldn't know what the word 'expectorate' means."

"Why not run saloons?" asked an inquisitive man.

"Because you can shut up saloons, but you can't shut down a woman's tongue," she replied. —St. Louis Globe Democrat.

All Fixed

"So," said her indignant father, "young Mr. Nervey wants to take you away from me."

"Oh, yes," replied the dear girl, "but he says he'll bring me back after the wedding. I don't know, but he decided that we shall board with you." —The Catholic Standard and Times.

Her System

"Did your cook say right at that time that you wanted to stay at home that evening?"

"No, but she said 'yes' in every word of food we had to eat that day!" —New York Sun.

Mrs. A.—So your husband is all the time talking shop. What you mustn't mind that.

Mrs. B.—I wouldn't if he were any thing else but an undertaker. —Boston Transcript.

"Why should we say to Satan, 'Get thee behind me!'?" asked the teacher.

"So that we shall get ahead of him," returned the bright boy.

Suffragette Activity

The women of New York state are trying to bring the Empire State into the suffrage group to follow California. New York city is about torn asunder with suffrage dogs. There are also local organizations. Clarence Mackay's library opened a circulating suffrage library recently. The Woman's Political union held a meeting in California, and it is to Mrs. Parkhurst, and the collection they took up amounted to $20,000, and with this they are branching out in various directions. A vote for women on ball is the next affair, and then comes the suffrage parade, when they count on having 30,000 women in line, with banners and a parade of a company of cavalry. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has opened a magnificent clubhouse, and her next venture is a daily paper. The woman's suffrage party is starting a magazine that will compete with the Ladies Home Journal in advertising and furnish such reading as the ladies have never had died up to them.

Toronto Man Cured of Inoluble Itch

By Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment.

"I just want to say a good word for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Four or five years ago I was in Port Arthur, and I had an attack of the itch. It came upon me so suddenly and so intensely that I was unable to do anything but scratch myself. I was especially afflicted."

"I went to two doctors about it, and tried many different remedies, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was told to take a hot bath, and I did so, but it only made the itch worse. I then took Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a few days the itch was completely cured. I have not had it since. I am now a healthy man, and I can do my work as usual. I am very grateful to Cuticura Soap and Ointment for curing me. I would be pleased to mention this to anyone who is afflicted with the itch." —Mr. J. E. Hooper, 508 Parliament Street, Toronto, Ont., 1917.

Origin of Radium

Of the various problems raised by the discovery of radium and its associates, all but two have now been solved. Prof. Frederick Soddy in his recent discourse at the Royal Institution, The Royal Canadian Institute, is the origin, and the ultimate disintegration products of uranium and thorium. These two primary radioactive elements are the only ones changing slowly enough to account for the existence of radium in the earth, and the only ones with specific gravities higher than that of water. It is the result of a union of two or more elements, it follows that the physicist must look to uranium or thorium as its source.

In order to test the percentage of radium, Prof. Soddy's nine years ago purified some uranium (from radium) and set it aside in a closed vessel. After a year and a half he found a trace of radium in the vessel, but only a thousandth part of the amount that the physicist must look to uranium or thorium as its source.

The non-appearance of radium Professor Soddy explained by the assumption that at the time of its production occurs between uranium and radium. He began further isolation in 1903, and in 1904 he had his hypothesis. The result of these has been the conclusion that the radium found was the result of a union of two or more elements, it follows that the physicist must look to uranium or thorium as its source.

Soldiers Killed by Tight Belts

The risk of soldiers wearing tight belts was emphasized at a Hackney inquest on William Dixon, who for seventeen years in the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, and served in the South African war, who died suddenly and unexpectedly and medical evidence showed death to be due to a heart attack, and swelling of the main artery leading from the heart.

The coroner said this state of things, which was often associated with men who had been in the army, and had not been subjected to any great strain after. In the army the complaint was rather common. Sudden deaths were caused, and another cause lay in tightly buckled up belts, such as soldiers had to wear in warfare. Such belts put a strain on the heart more than the ordinary workman had, who generally worked without a jacket and a tight belt. It was often feared that soldiers died from this cause, though it might not be for years after.—London Chronicle.

The case with which corns and warts can be removed by Holloway's Corn Cure is its greatest recommendation. It seldom fails.

GERMANY GOING SOON

It may be Tautonic Hostile! Instead of "Yankee Hush!" Soon

In Germany every one speaks one or two languages in addition to his own. It is the most common thing in a banking institution, no matter how lowly the character of his work is, unless he is at least a little bit of a foreign language.

Traveling from Flushing to Berlin the railroad passes through an average of factories over 800 miles long and all of them working overtime, says the Explorer's Review. Farm lands have been converted into city lots and whole villages are being torn down to be replaced by five and six story city dwellings—not an old house to be seen anywhere, and in passing by the sky line is red with the tiled roofs of new dwellings. Individual wealth has grown enormously with it, but they are hard workers, the people of Germany, and the push and energy of the German people is most astounding. Krupp's factory in Essen now employs 45,000 men, and is a great place.

A resident of a London suburb recently resorted to a strange expedient to scare off birds in his garden. He had a large black cat placed on a cat belonging to his little daughter in a crouching position on the grass (the cat was not to be joined). The result has been highly satisfactory. Birds of all kinds have chattered the garden.

Remarkable Placid.

London.—A remarkable placid, believed to be the largest ever caught on the North Sea fishing grounds, was landed at Grimsby yesterday. The fish was three feet in length, and over eighteen inches in breadth and turned the scale at twenty pounds.

"Oh, mother! Couldn't father do that for me? He wouldn't let me have something of Gen. Benevolence, so he for him before everybody in the church?" —Los Angeles Times.

Butler—"There's a man here to see you, stillable."

Maryberry—"What did you tell him?"

Butler—"I told him you told me, if it was a lady, to say you were in, and that if it was a man, to say you were out."

Maryberry—"What did he say then?"

Butler—"He said to tell you he was a lady."

MOTHERS PLEASED WITH BABY'S OWN TABLETS

A mother who has once used Baby's Own Tablets for her little one never fails to show her pleasure at the result. She at once realizes that they are the ideal medicine for baby—being absolutely safe and free from injurious drugs and at the same time a cure for all the little ills to which babies suffer. Mrs. P. Thier, Paquetville, N. B., writes: "Please send me another box of Baby's Own Tablets. I was extremely pleased with the last. My baby was greatly troubled with constipation and vomiting, but the Tablets quickly cured her." The Tablets are sold by all dealers or by mail from a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It is a Liver Pill—Many of the ailments that man has to contend with have their origin in a disordered liver, which is a delicate organ, peculiarly susceptible to the disturbances that come from irregular habits or lack of care in eating and drinking. This accounts for the great many liver troubles now pressed on the attention of sufferers. Of these there is none superior to Allen's Vegetable Pills. Their operation through gentle is effective, and the most delicate can use them.

J. D. S. Barrett Disposes of His Interests and Resigns
 With last week's issue of this paper Mr. Barrett laid down the editorial pen which he has wielded for the past two years in the interest of the welfare and development of this district.
 About two and a half years ago we undertook to establish a weekly newspaper in the town of Blairmore and our optimism of that time has been rewarded by the steady growth of all the surrounding district evidenced today in no small measure by the permanency with which all manufacturing, business and residential blocks are being established.
 The town of Blairmore is today looked upon as the rising capital of The Crows' Nest Pass, and is being featured as one of the most attractive and promising centres of the western dominion.
 The task of supplying a newspaper that would please all classes has been tried and tried, but never yet has been accomplished. So we have tried to please the majority of people and sentiment, except where such would conflict with our motto---"To stand out for what is right and just, principle rather than party." In this endeavor Mr. Barrett has merited considerable favor, and much of the advancement attained by the different sections of this district is to some extent attributable to the policy advocated by this paper.
Coleman Notes
 M. Brown who has just arrived from Bishop's Falls, Newfoundland was in town for short while on Monday, returning to Blairmore in the afternoon.
 W. P. Stanley, of Spokane, has accepted the position of manager of the Coleman Bulletin. J. J. Atherton, the former manager of the local paper has taken up real estate.
 Mrs. J. W. Sadler intends leaving here soon for Golden, B. C., where Mr. Sadler has accepted a position in a general store. Mrs. Sadler's many friends in town will be sorry to see her leave Coleman.
 The local Orangemen intend celebrating the "Glorious Twelfth" at Pincher Creek. It is hoped that the brethren will receive a better reception at the "Creek" than they received at Lethbridge last year.
 The St. Alban's Sunday School will hold their annual picnic on Wednesday next. The children will be entertained at the moving picture show, in the Morrison block, early in the afternoon, after which they will be fed. Sports will be indulged in later and nothing in the reach of reason will be left undone for the pleasure of the boys and girls.
 For soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, there is nothing better than Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment also relieves rheumatic pains. For sale by all dealers.
 Messrs. Wood & Beaumont, of Calgary, have opened up a moving picture show in the Morrison block. They intend to run two shows each night and charge an admission of 15 and 10 cents. The building has been nicely arranged for this work and it has taken on a city-like appearance. Mr. Wood is a singer of note and will give illustrated songs. Mr. Edwards has been engaged as pianist.
 Dysentery is always serious and often a dangerous disease, but it can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has cured it even when malignant and epidemic. For sale by all dealers.
 Local business in general is reported as being good. The mines are working fairly well and the men are making big money. The merchants are kept busy and everybody seems to be on the alert. Some of our citizens are yelling for a steam laundry, but so long as the Old Man river skirts our busy burg there should be no excuse for anyone going dirty---during the summer months at least. What we really do want is a brick yard, a sash and door factory, an iron foundry and machine shop, a glass manufactory, a sugar factory and a paper and pulp mill. We have the raw material for the successful operation of the industries mentioned above as well as for other concerns which might be well established in Coleman and operated at great advantage.

 If you are a housewife you cannot reasonably hope to be healthy or beautiful by washing dishes, sweeping and doing housework all day, and crawling into bed dead tired at night. You must get into the open air and sunlight. If you do this every day and keep your stomach and bowels in good order by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, you should become both healthy and beautiful. For sale by all dealers.

Address and Presentation to Mrs. J. W. Sadler
 On Friday evening last the members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Alban's church, Coleman, met at the home of Mrs. J. W. Sadler where an address was read and a silver cake basket was presented to her as a token of appreciation for the valuable services which she had so earnestly and assiduously given that organization. The following address was read by F. E. Graham, and the presentation was made by Mrs. E. Disney.
 Dear Mrs. Sadler---We are all sorry to have to say good-bye to any member of our Women's Auxiliary but our regret at your departure from our midst is truly great, because we feel that we are losing both a good friend and a keen fellow-worker. You have always displayed an active and sympathetic interest in the labors of our organization, and the cause of our church has never failed to find a warm place in your heart. We know that all your labors have been labors of love, performed with no expectation of receiving any material reward or recognition. But desiring to express our general appreciation of your most valuable co-operation in all that our auxiliary has undertaken, we ask you to accept from us a small gift which we hope in years to come will recall pleasant recollections of your short stay amongst us in Coleman. Our united and sincere prayer is that God may bless you richly in the future, and grant you many years of useful service in this cause.
 (Signed)

 Members of St. Alban's Women's Auxiliary, Coleman, Alberta, July 5, 1912.
 Mrs. Sadler thanked the ladies for the words of appreciation contained in the address and for the beautiful present received from them. She would always look back with pleasant memories on the many hours spent at the Women's Auxiliary and the members would always have her kind thoughts and good wishes for their future welfare. She had no idea of such a thing occurring, and the whole affair was a very pleasant surprise to her.
 Pleasant conversations then took place after which the visitors unloaded the baskets of delectable edibles which they had brought along with them, and all sat down to a splendid repast. The surprise party dispersed about 10.30 p.m. declaring that they had had a very pleasant evening and again expressing regret that Mrs. Sadler had decided to leave Coleman. They all joined in wishing her prosperity and many warm friends in her new home.

BLAIRMORE,

The Mystery Lady

She Contrived to Carry Out a Hidden Scheme

By EDITH CONNORS

I am a dealer in secondhand books. I buy those that are sold out when families break up their homes and in this way secure from time to time volumes that I know to be rare, though the seller often is ignorant of the fact. Nevertheless I am free to say that I don't take advantage of their ignorance, but pay a fair price for the goods. These rarities I keep and now have a collection that is becoming every day more and more valuable.

One day a young woman came into my store and began looking over my stock. She attracted me at once by her appearance, her gentle manner, her soft feminine voice and traces in her countenance of some great grief. She took down from the shelves different books, most of them on the subject of the occult, and left her to examine them according to her own sweet will, but she was so attractive to me that I could scarcely keep my eyes off her. She seemed so much interested in the binding as in the other parts. I noticed that in the case of several of the books she looked over the slipped cover and fingers over the cover as if to gauge its thickness or smoothness, I couldn't tell which.

She laid out five books separate from the rest, all on religious subjects, and asked me the price of the lot. I figured it up, and she paid me without any effort to induce me to take less, but stipulated that she should be permitted to bring any of them back within a week to be exchanged for such others as she might select. I agreed to this, and she went away.

I suppose a hundred persons might have come into my shop at different times and looked into my stock without attracting my special notice from me, but this woman excited an interest that I was unable to account for. I presume it was her engaging presence. As any rule, I could not get her out of my mind. Possibly it was because I had met one capable of kindling in me that inexplicable feeling which indicates the dawn of love. But this time as it may, I hoped that she would bring one of the books back for exchange that I might see her again.

My hope was realized. On the sixth day after her first appearance she came again, bringing back a book printed in 1845 and bound with all the ornaments of that period. The cover was about a quarter of an inch thick. The title was "Christian Advice to Young Men." I remembered her having slipped her fingers over the corners of the book and her return of this one indicated that it was the book she was looking for. The binding she did not care for, but she wanted the corners of the book to engage her in conversation about her purpose in buying the book, but did not succeed in eliciting anything. I gave her another book in place of the one she brought back and replaced the one she returned on the shelves. It was a week away, unconvinced of my kindly feeling for her it was not my fault, for I showed her as plainly as I could that I liked her.

What it was that induced me, after she had gone, to take the book she had returned from her shelf and look it over I don't know, unless it was the same feeling that induced me to give her another book in place of the one she brought back and replaced the one she returned on the shelves. It was a week away, unconvinced of my kindly feeling for her it was not my fault, for I showed her as plainly as I could that I liked her.

that person been seen to look for the book she had bought. I thought she might have gone on looking for it, but it had been purchased in an ordinary way. I was bound to admit to myself that they were without any foundation whatever. From that time on I dismissed them from my mind. But I did not banish from my mind the young woman who had looked at the book and face of her, those Madonna-like eyes and, above all, the transition in her under my effort to induce her to look at what troubled her were ever present with me.

Within a few days after the visit of the purchasing agent, who should come to but the young woman who is the subject of this story. She said that after all she had concluded to take the volume called "Christian Advice to Young Men." When I told her that it had been sold a secret look, or a disappointed look, I could not tell which, passed over her face. But when I informed her that I had bought it, though she endeavored to conceal a look of relief or pleasure, she did not succeed. Then I knew that the book was connected in some way with the mystery which interested me. She was leaving my store when I caught at a method of finding out more about her. I asked her to wait a moment, and she hesitated, but I insisted that I might want her book circulars. She hesitated, as though she did not wish to give them, but finally she gave them to me. In walking past the number she gave and found the space occupied by a lively stable. She had given me a wrong address.

It is needless to say that this deepened my interest in her. Some time passed before I saw anything more of her. I began to feel that I was not going to see her. Then one day she came in, and the moment I saw her I knew that there had been a great change in her. The old expression had left her face and had been replaced by one that I could only interpret as a newly acquired hope. She pretended that she had not seen me, but she could see by the way she picked them out and immediately laid them down that she was not interested in them. I determined on a bold stroke.

"You don't wish to buy any books today," I said. "You have come in here with an entirely different object. You have been using my stock for some specific purpose. That purpose has been either successful or partially so. You have had to tell me, but you have had my sympathy. Assured of this, it has been hard for you not to trust me. Something has occurred that you wish to tell me, but you have not quite made up your mind to give me your confidence. Do so, and I promise you that you will not regret it."

"How do you know I am not divine that?" she asked, with mingled surprise and pleasure in her expression.

"A little bird told me."

"There is no reason why I should now explain everything. I would have been a fool before to tell you the story of my father. He was a bookkeeper and cashier for a mercantile house. One day he was called by a member of the firm who contrived to cover up his tracks by manufacturing certain evidence against my father, who was arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to state prison for twenty years."

"Our only hope was to enable him to escape, and I did that work up myself. I was permitted to visit him in prison, and he told me that he had laid out a plan by which he might regain his liberty. The plan was simple, with which to remove steel bars. He was detected. Since then I have never been permitted to see him. He is now some one watching me while he remains. But I communicated with him through others. When I carried the books away, I carried the plan with me. I took one, 'Christian Advice to Young Men,' with very thick covers. Then I removed enough of the interior of the book to enable me to insert several thin steel bars."

"Ah," I exclaimed, "see it all! But go on with your story."

"I dare not be implicated in sending the book to my father, so I learned of a society organized to furnish reading matter to prisoners and got a friend to recommend it and tell where the copy could be bought. Before returning the volume to me, I placed in it a mark on the one hundredth page which my father had been instructed to look for to designate a book with news in the cover."

"Again I see!" I remarked.

"Well, I shorten a long story, my father had been instructed to look for to designate a book with news in the cover."

"I see," I remarked.

DOWN ON THE FARM.

HOW dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood. But not as my childhood presents them to my view. For then it was merely the barest actualities. Now, when I am alone in the quiet of the night, I can see the scenes of my childhood as they were.

The orchard, the meadow, both deep, tangled and wild. The fields, with a sent for a vanguard of the night. The excitement was down at the station. The station was west through with its tender in front.

The ramshackle barn and the crib that stood near it. The lopsided porch where the saddle was hung. With naught to be seen in the smokehouse to cheer it. And our old muley milker had only one lung.

The old caken bucket, that dog-eared bucket. The things that I called it you ain't, I loved to tell. When drawing it up if the stone curbing struck it. The handle came off, and it dropped in the ditch.

With a rope and a grab hook I fished all around it. And drew up a rake minus handle or spike. Not seeing a sign of direction, I found it. The horse of the farmer are just what we like.

Our team was a pony, and one eye was phony. He was perfectly safe and too old to play tricks. With no more to the poor they slept under the floor. And helped us keep warm with their backs in the chimney.

Once down on the farm near the village of Tyrone. A man came struck us. It hit us by gum! But nobody knows of tornado or cyclone. With ever more of a shock out of plumb.

The peaky old fireplace held all to pieces. Though to look at him smoking you'd think he would win. He was attacked to put up a couple of chimneys. But the first one fell out, and the other fell in.

Fresh air of the country, in our shack I have sought it. With no doors in the summer, the windows alone. Dad raged in a "high brow" committee who brought it. An excited lot as the birthplace of Oriskany.

Why "Boys leave the farm" with "No mother to guide them." The moralists talk in soliloquies brown. They all want a civilized place in the city. With windows and steam heat both work up or down.

No Credit. Maybe the man who boasts that he does not believe in the world couldn't if he tried.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Comparative Emotion. Gratitude, although it may exist in a very earnest form, is by no means the strongest and most convincing of the human emotions. When Lawrence Barrett's daughter was married Stuart Robinson sent a check for $5,000 to the bridegroom. The bridegroom's daughter, Felicia Robinson, who attended the wedding, conveyed the gift.

"Felicia," said her father upon her return, "did you give him the check?" "Yes, father," replied the daughter. "What did he say?" asked Robinson. "He didn't say anything," replied Miss Felicia, "but he shed tears."

"What, father, I didn't think him. I should say, however, he wept fully a minute."

"To be a minute," mused Robinson. "Why, daughter, I cried for an hour after I signed it!"—Rock Island Union.

Willing to Accommodate. The true shamrock is one of the finest of the clover family and has small yellow bloom—that "sprig of shamrock," wearing of the green.

When an Irish mother brings forth a male child she puts his first foot on the sword of her husband and lightly introduces the first auspicious of her child's life. The mother's name is the name of the sword—Solima, 1,700 years ago.

No wonder the Irish are natural born soldiers.—New York Press.

Precaution. Small boys have a way of listening to remarks that older persons make and using them when least expected. A mother was surprised the other day to have her young son reply to her when she was reproving him for some trifling indiscretion, "I know, mamma, you must put up with me. You know I'm just at the trying age."

No, He Wasn't. He—And did you call at Monte Carlo when you were in Nice? She—No. Papa called on me, I believe, but from his disappointed appearance when he returned to the hotel I think Mr. Carlo must have been in.—London Telegraph.

Har Tributes. "I think I know my own follies," he said. "If you do," his wife replied, "your knowledge takes a much wider range than I have ever given it credit for."—Chicago Record-Herald.

COOLED THEIR WRATH.

Bailey's Way When He Caught a Tattle Tale. When the telephone bell rang the senior partner said to the junior partner: "If that is that man Bailey just tell him what you think of him, even if you say yourself liable to a fine for violent language."

The junior partner related himself of a few abusive epithets, but presently after a brief pause he expressed the same sentiments couched in much milder terms. Said the junior partner: "There you go crowding again. Why can't you stick to what you said in the first place?"

The senior partner dropped the receiver. "Supposing you come and say it yourself," he said.

The senior partner did so, but after a little he, too, repeated his harangue with all the backbone left out.

"It's no use," he said. "You can't cure a man twice over the phone who answers your first outburst with 'I beg your pardon. I didn't quite catch that. Say it again, please.' That is Bailey's way. You try to say it again, but the second time it sounds pretty rank even in your own ears, and your temper of rags moderates into a tranquil breeze."—New York Times.

UNKNOWN COUNTRIES.

Mongolia and Tibet Mostly a Riddle to the Outside World. Neither the Chinese themselves nor the rest of the world knows much of Mongolia or Tibet. The most of those countries belongs to the desert, and although they have been inhabited since the time when the memory of man runseth not to the contrary, the outside world has been ignorant of them and they to the world an unexplored riddle.

The great desert of Gobi, that is partly in China, partly in Manchuria, partly in Mongolia and partly in Siberia, is traversed by the oldest transportation lines in existence. It has a caravan route that has been in existence since the time when the memory of man runseth not to the contrary, the outside world has been ignorant of them and they to the world an unexplored riddle.

GROTESQUE DANCES.

Vaquil Natives Wear Antlers and Jump Like Deer. Natives of the Vaquil region in Mexico make use of queer costumes in their dances. Seated on the ground around a fire, four good singers chant dialogue between the deer and other animals and birds, such as the coyote, the jaguar, the wolf, the bear, the eagle and the hawk. Their music is made by beating with small sticks, saturated to blood and then dried, on "gucanas" or tightly stretched mats of platted tule.

The dancer lies on his head the skin and horns of the head of a deer—which is often better than his own—and from his belt of deer hide hang many deer hoofs, which rattle continuously as he goes through the steps of the dance. In his hands he carries two large rattles, made of gourds partly filled with pebbles. These he also shakes to keep time to the music.

The dancer tries to imitate, as far as possible, the movements of the deer. He shakes himself sideways and with his hands makes motions similar to those of the deer's long white tail as it swings. You try to say it again, but the second time it sounds pretty rank even in your own ears, and your temper of rags moderates into a tranquil breeze."—New York Times.

A FASHION HINT.

Freshen Up Last Season's Gown With a Tunic.

In a lively article in the current number of Farm and Fireside on the relations between husbands and wives on the subject of home finances there are several interesting reports of actual cases. Following is a report of a staid husband:

"A girl I knew in my youth was married after a short acquaintance to a scholarly professional man. He had been brought up under hard conditions in a strenuous school of poverty. She was the daughter of wealth and had never been denied a reasonable wish. Her husband is what is called a good provider. He bought supplies for the table and was not averse to being plentiful of fuel and sufficient house furnishings to keep his home comfortable and dignified. He simply declined to let her buy so much as a cent's worth of anything. He did not wish her to have accounts at shops, nor did he want her to waste money in the store. He said she wanted to buy anything for her dress and when he accompanied her, superintended her purchases, examined every pair of stockings and every yard of material and frowned upon reckless and aimless things as needless, drawing out his well filled pocketbook and paying the bills. He said she wanted to buy anything for her dress and when he accompanied her, superintended her purchases, examined every pair of stockings and every yard of material and frowned upon reckless and aimless things as needless, drawing out his well filled pocketbook and paying the bills. He said she wanted to buy anything for her dress and when he accompanied her, superintended her purchases, examined every pair of stockings and every yard of material and frowned upon reckless and aimless things as needless, drawing out his well filled pocketbook and paying the bills."

Followers of King William III: Parade

On Sunday last Wellington lodge, No. 2224, Loyal Orange Association, held their annual church parade. The members and a number of visiting brethren met in the lodge room, on Victoria street, about 2.30 p.m. when the meeting was called to order and the necessary preparations were made for the parade. Shortly after 3 o'clock the followers of him who "conquered at the Boyne" formed in procession and marched up Victoria street to the C.P.R. depot, then down to Tenth avenue to State street and to the Central Baptist church where an able and very instructive sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. J. F. Hunter, B. D.

The speaker based his remarks on the words: "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us," I Samuel, 7, and part of verse 12, and "One mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus," I Timothy, 2, and 5v. The formation of Protestantism was referred to at some length; Martin Luther, "the great reformer," being the result of work which had preceded him. The work of the reformation was dwelt on and many of the successes made by the early Protestants received attention by the speaker who greatly enlightened his audience. Great sacrifices were made by the followers of Luther in accomplishing their grand purpose. And later came the Orange order. The society was called the Orange order because it was established to support and defend the Prince of Orange who was invited to England and who accepted the English throne. Ever since its organization in Exeter, in November, 1688, the Orange order had prospered and had endeavored to maintain the Protestant religion and the civil and religious rights of the people.

The speaker also referred to the single school system, the No. 10 Temperance decree and the French language all of which were "a detriment to the Orange order and to the whole Protestant religion." Unscrupulous politicians were also mentioned. The Orange order was for the correction of parties and was not a political body. The sermon was declared to be the best ever heard by many of the Orangemen present, and it is a great pity that a verbatim report was not taken of it. The principles of the Loyal Orange Association were dealt with in an exhaustive manner, and the local lodge would do well to have last Sunday's sermon printed in pamphlet form and sold to the members or to any one interested. After the service in the church, was over, the members returned to the lodge room where some brief remarks were made by the brethren after which they dispersed fully satisfied with the afternoon's event.

THE FIGHT GOES BRAVELY ON

After three whole weeks of strange silence, the precincts of the council chamber vibrated on Monday night last when one of the most striking dramas ever enacted before a Blairmore audience was heartily enjoyed by a number of ratepayers who occupied positions on the spectators' bench. The fight over the site for the proposed fire hall still goes on; the Mayor refuses to attach his signature to a cheque for payment for the Malcolm property and he, from whom the council agreed to purchase the land, has entered legal proceedings against the town fathers, and as to what will be the outcome of it all is causing some of the wisecracks to work over time in telling others about the "dark and dreary future."

At the meeting held on Monday last there were present Mayor Lyon, Councillors Farmer, Sinclair, McLeod and Dutil. The first business of passing notice was the reading of a batch of communications the first one of which was from a firm of auditors offering to audit the town books for a price which the council did not feel disposed to give.

Solicitor Moore was informing the council that buildings on the streets should be moved from off the public highways if the council so desired. It was decided to lay the matter over for a while.

The West Canadian Collieries asked the council to have the water works extended to their property at the west end of Blairmore, the extension to be as follows: Second avenue, from Victoria street to State street and west to Wicart avenue, and south to Victoria street. The company have already eleven large and splendid dwelling houses on that property and they have decided to proceed with the immediate erection of others. The extension will be made.

The West Canadian Collieries also made application for an extension of the water works to their mine, and this application was considered as being favorable.

Acting upon the advice of Woods & Steele, the council awarded the contract for the pipe for the proposed water works extensions to the Pacific Coast Pipe Co., of Vancouver. The contract for gate valves was awarded to the Canadian Fairbanks Co., of Calgary.

The Dominion Wood Pipe Co., of New Westminster, was a close second for the supplying of pipe, and in some cases the prices submitted by the D. W. & P. Co. were less than those asked for by the Vancouver firm.

The following bills were ordered paid: H. G. Bigelow, $5.55; W. A. Beebe, $20; W. A. Malcolm, $1.50; Peter McLaren Lumber Co., $26.65, and E. Morino $30. The proposed fire hall site again

Wedding Bells Ring Out at Nelson

A very quiet wedding took place at Nelson, B. C. on Wednesday evening last, when Rev. A. S. Tod, B. D., and Miss M. R. O'Brien were made man and wife. The wedding was solemnized at the Presbyterian church, Rev. Loggie officiating. Shortly after the ceremony, the happy couple left on their honeymoon, visiting different parts of British Columbia, before going to Grand Forks where Mr. Tod is supplying for a month at the Presbyterian church. The newly wedded couple will probably return to Blairmore about the latter part of August and after a brief stay here may leave for Arrols, a prosperous farming town about 112 miles south of Regina, where the reverend gentleman has been offered the pastorate of a large Presbyterian church. Both Rev. and Mrs. Tod have the best wishes of their many Blairmore friends for a long, happy and prosperous wedded life.

came up for discussion. The cheque for the payment of the Malcolm property remained unsigned by the autocratic Mayor. This caused brief rebukes from most of the Councillors.

Councillor McLeod: "The council is not dealing fairly with Mr. Malcolm. He should have demanded a deposit of at least $100 from the council with the acceptance of their offer to purchase two lots from him. The council's word is no good."

A voice from the back: "The council is no good."

The last remark incited many spectators to jocular expressions and loud laughter.

Mayor Lyon stated that he was sorry that so much trouble had been caused over the proposed fire hall site, and he thought that the councillors should abide by the expressions of opinion made at a meeting of the ratepayers held in April last. The mayor claimed that the councillors were the cause of all the trouble.

Councillor McLeod thought that the latter remark of the mayor was not correct, and added that the mayor himself was the cause of all the trouble and discord. He did not believe that the mayor had the interest of the town at heart when he advised the erection of the fire hall some blocks away from the business section. Most of the risks were in the business section and the councillor thought that that part of the town should be protected first.

By-law No. 2, authorizing the purchase of two lots from W. A. Malcolm, and the erection of a fire hall thereon, was read a second time.

It was decided to call for the election of a councillor to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. G. Smith. Secretary Sherer was appointed returning officer and was instructed to act immediately.

The last act of this performance was concluded when a drunken man entered the chamber and staggered to where the mayor was sitting and gave the latter gentleman a hearty shake of the hand, prefacing his action with the words, "You have got more friends than I have."

The meeting adjourned at 10.30 p.m.

J. S. Irwin, representing Musgrave Limited, came down from Calgary on Saturday in the interest of his firm.
